No problem, thanks for the info. This should allow us to automate some of our processes and eliminate the need for the FTP site.

When an attorney registers on our site, we will verify them against the API and create our attorney record as needed. An activation email will be sent to the email provided by the API to ensure only legitimate attorneys will be added to our Attorney role. PHV accounts will be created manually on request. Eligibility will be checked on each login such that attorneys will be disabled if Eligible=”No” and PHV users will be disabled if the EntityType is not equal to “PHV”.

Sorry for the delay.

Due to the nature of the PHV program, their eligibility can be either "No" or "Limited". The Boolean `eligible` property will only recognize fully eligible members ("Yes") as true. You can get further insight from the `eligibility-label` property, which will say either "Limited Practice of Law in Florida" or "Not Eligible to Practice Law in Florida".

Sorry, for all the emails, just trying to figure out how everything works.

I ran the API for some of our PHV users and they all return No for Eligibility (see example below). Are all PHV members going to be set this way or is just the case that the members were eligible for a short period and then the eligibility was changes to No?

Here are the PHV users I tried:

- 107615
- 1049595
- 1027002
- 1041933
- 1042279
- 1051615

Since we don't have a way to track the status of a case, we depend on the PHV to report it. Currently that requires a phone call to our Member Services department, who will adjust their status. We're working on a solution that will allow them to self-report via our Member Portal, but that is not available yet.

Requesting the member information for a PHV works the same, except that the "entity-type" will be PHV.

For Pro Hac Vice, do you automatically disable them when their case closes? How do you handle those?

If I where to send the API a bar number from a Pro Hac Vice user, what would the response look like?

I'm trying to figure out if I need to do anything special for them?

I think I am better off just managing as we go. When an attorney logs in I'll call the API and update their record, and when a new attorney registers I'll add them.

We do not currently support an endpoint that provides all 104K+ MIGS. It's not entirely out of the question, but we'd likely need to paginate the response, requiring multiple requests to retrieve all members. Also, we'd want to reduce the package size by eliminating unnecessary fields.

Our dev team is pretty busy now, but if this is something you'd still like to pursue as I've described it, let me know your expected implementation timeline.

It's been a long time, but we are getting much closer to the point where we will want to use your API.

Currently we download the attorney list from the FTP site. Besides this endpoint to get information by barnumber, is there an endpoint that retrieves all members in good standing. We have an application that maintains a list of attorneys, and I want to keep the list up to date.

Here's what you need to know to use our RESTful API to validate attorneys.

- Our API is hosted on `api.floridabar.org` and uses encryption over HTTPS.
- You'll need to provide a bearer token with each request. This is passed using the Authorization request header.
    - Your token is: `12|aipk85HknWi3mDyXSrNKkqdIUqKgyR4adfEBQQzS`
    - This token is associated with JTerhune@jud12.flcourts.org. If the token needs to be changed or if anything needs to be communicated about the API service, we will use this email address. Let me know if you prefer a different email address.
- The endpoint that you'll use is `/members/:barnumber` which uses the attorney's TFB Bar number.
- The response generally follows the JSON:API spec. The data attribute that you'll want to examine is "`eligible`" (boolean).
- The current API version is 2.0. If you want to specify a version during your request, use the Accept-Version request header. If you don't specify a version in the header, you'll get a response from the current version.

Sample request for Bar number 19075:

```
GET /members/19075 HTTP/1.1

Accept-Version: 2.0

Authorization: Bearer
12|aipk85HknWi3mDyXSrNKkqdIUqKgyR4adfEBQQzS

Host: api.floridabar.org

We offer two APIs that you can use to validate attorneys. There is a SOAP-based version (with an XML response) and a RESTful version (with a JSON response).

If you're interested in using one of these, I can provide more details. If either works equally well for your environment, I'd recommend the RESTful version since it is faster and is typically easier to integrate.
